- Full stack web development instructor (Nov 2017 - Jun 2018)

I've taken a full stack web development course previously, it was free, but it gave the opportunity to give back to the community by training the following batches just like I was taught. I found great joy in delivering the information to two following batches in much simpler ways than I had been given.

A young activist for Tamer institute for community education, we had many tours, playing with children, distributing and collecting donated books, alongside some creative writing programs both in Arabic and English.
